1. The Kapellenberg-Kaserne in Jueterbog (N 52/E 69) was occupied to capacity on 6 December 1950. Gate guards wore red-bordered black epaulets. Four new watchtowers have been erected at the corners of the old slaughterhouse which was in the billeting area. This is apparently a supply dump.

3. The Fuchsberg billeting area includes the Fuchsberg-Kaserne proper, which had formerly quartered German artillery observation troops, and the adjoining Artillerie Schulc, which, according to local residents, is subdivided into the Heidorn-Kaserne, the Turn-Kaserne, the Bcharnhorst-Kaserne and the Hindernia-Kaserne. All barracks were occupied to capacity by tank units.

* [Redacted] Comment. Source has not identified the installations correctly. In Jueterbog, on either side of the Mittenberg-Berlin railroad line, there are two billeting areas, the Fuchsberg-Kaserne or Kapellenberg-Kaserne bounded by the railroad line on the east and the Jueterbog II installations- the Pleidorn-Kaserne, the Turn-Kaserne and the Hindersin-Kaserne- bounded by the railroad line on the west. It is possible that the slaughterhouse may have been included in the eastern section of the Fuchsberg-Kaserne area. The Schernhorst-Kaserne is not an installation of its own, but constitutes a part of one of the three Jueterbog II installations.
